

Sarah Glaz: Two Poems [1]

May 9, 2016 Math Poetry [2]

The Integers Are Not a Happy Medium

When I arrive

you are already there waiting

a shadow swiftly fleets across your brow

The integers are not a happy medium

you say by way of greeting

They fly which way scatter without restraint

fritter through fingers faster than one can count the gains

And you are late again

Forward to the Beginning

The difference between a polyp and a tumor
is like the difference between a polynomial and a continuous function

*

How did I get from there to here when all my relatives gathering their brood around them parted the tents' flaps and looking up toward the mountain top saw Moses' face beam down
from above

*

Cotton-mouth do not bite
the apple was sour

*

I do not want to be a rib

*

0

---

Art Information

- “Fire and Ice” © Niels Langeveld; used by permission.

Sarah Glaz: Two Poems

Published on Talking Writing (<https://www.talkingwriting.com>)

---

Sarah Glaz is professor of mathematics at the University of Connecticut specializing in the area of commutative algebra. She also has a lifelong interest in poetry, serves as associate editor for the Journal of Mathematics and the Arts, coedited the poetry anthology Strange Attractors: Poems of Love and Mathematics (A. K. Peters/CRC Press, 2008), is the editor of the Bridges Poetry Anthologies, and has published poems and translations in both mathematical and literary periodicals.

For more information, visit Sarah Glaz's website [3].

Source URL: <https://www.talkingwriting.com/sarah-glaz-two-poems>

Links:

[1] <https://www.talkingwriting.com/sarah-glaz-two-poems>

[2] <https://www.talkingwriting.com/talkingwriting-categories/spotlight-math-poetry>

[3] <http://www.math.uconn.edu/~glaz/>